

CVVER News and Outlook into the fall semester

Happening now...:

- * wrapping up ... this summer's research, e.g. from the AVC SRLP (Callan Johnson, supervised by Katy Proudfoot, received first price!),
- * starting ... fall semester graduate courses with 16 (VHM 8010) and 6 (VHM 8110) students,
- * running ... second module of Epi on the Island courses: Risk Analysis, by Javier Sanchez, 6 participants (first module in August, Quantitative Bias Analysis, Ian Dohoo & Simon Dufour, 22 participants),
- * starting ... a new CVVER Twitter account (big thanks to Caroline, Joao, Krishna, Marianne, Thitiwan): twitter.com/cver_avc,
- * will soon ... start to review applications for the position in aquatic epi (deadline Sep 10),
- * will soon ... announce the abstract submission process for ISVEE 16 in Halifax 2022.

Things we (CVER) could do this fall semester:

- * switch (some of?) our virtual coffee socials to real in-person meetings, with coffee and treats (yes!!),
- * establish a journal club activity in epidemiology, separate from or linked to the coffee socials,
- * your ideas ...

Things you might be interested in doing this fall semester:

- * to informally present your research (plans/results) at a coffee social,
- * to join the Twitter account team (we are looking for a native English speaker who could help to write content, largely based on templates),
- * to listen to Stata webinars,
 - new webinars: www.stata.com/training/webinar/,
 - access to old webinars: www.stata.com/training/webinar/past-webinar-recordings/,
- * to listen to a webinar by Dr. Timothy Caulfield, organized by Vetoquinol, on (health) science and misinformation (and more), Sep 22-23,
 - information and free registration at: arcregional.vetoquinol.ca.
